

ROBB & JULIE [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]
Seattle, WA
[REDACTED]

February 4, 1993

Greg McBride
1400 112th SE, Suite 218
Bellevue, Washington 98004

Dear Greg:

I am one of the students in Kathleen's Bradley class that you visited last night, and I wanted to write you a quick note to tell you how impressed I was with your style, delivery, and, most of all, your message.

My wife and I spent a year at Father Flanagan's Boys Home in Omaha, Nebraska, and much of what you said sounded so much like the kind of things we learned and used there. In addition, you were 100 percent accurate on so many of the thoughts, feelings, and conversations that take place in our lives, and probably in the lives of many of the other people in our situation. I especially respond to your messages to not "defend", and to learn to express negative, as well as positive, feelings.

Relationships, as dynamic expressions of who we are, take so much work, and it was wonderful to hear another man who understands and appreciates the effort required, and the rewards available.

Our class didn't ask many questions, myself included, and I hope you will not take that as a sign that we didn't relate, or respond, to what you were saying. Please keep doing exactly what you did last night, as everyone I know would certainly benefit from hearing the kinds of things you have to say.

Sincerely,

Robb [REDACTED]